

```

// Package main provides an example of using the comment API to add comments to Word documents.
package main import (

    "fmt"
    "log"

    "github.com/connerohnesorge/goffice/wordprocessing"
    "github.com/connerohnesorge/goffice/wordprocessing/elements"
)

func main() { // Create a new document doc, err := wordprocessing.New(
        "comment_example.docx",
        wordprocessing.DocTypeDocument,
    )
    if err != nil {
        log.Fatalf(
            "Failed to create document: %v",
            err,
        )
    }

    // Get the main part and body
    mainPart := doc.MainPart()
    docElem := mainPart.Document()
    body := docElem.GetOrCreateBody()

    // Add a paragraph with multiple runs para := elements.NewParagraph() para.AppendRun("This is ") para.AppendRun("some text ")
    para.AppendRun("with a comment.")
    body.AppendChild(para)

    // Apply a comment to runs 1-2 (covering "some text ") comment, err := doc.ApplyComment(
        para,
        1, // Start at "some text "
        2, // End at "with a comment."
        "John Doe",
        "This needs revision!",
    )
    if err != nil {
        _ = doc.Close()
        log.Fatalf(
            "Failed to apply comment: %v",
            err,
        )
    }

    fmt.Printf(
        "Created comment with ID: %d\n",
        comment.Id(),
    )
    fmt.Printf(
        "Comment author: %s\n",

```

```

        comment.Author(),
    )
    fmt.Printf(
        "Comment date: %s\n",
        comment.Date(),
    )

    // Save the document
    if err := doc.Save(); err != nil {
        _ = doc.Close()
        log.Fatalf(
            "Failed to save document: %v",
            err,
        )
    }

    // Close the document
    if err := doc.Close(); err != nil {
        log.Fatalf(
            "Failed to close document: %v",
            err,
        )
    }

    fmt.Println("Document saved successfully!")
}

```